Farm, Foreign, Fiscal Decisions Will Chart Future, Talmadge Says

Three Areas Referred To As Fundamental F's Of Government Today

BLAIRSVILLE, Ga. — Basic decisions which must be made soon in these fields of farm, foreign and fiscal policy well may determine the future course of the United States, Former Governor Herman E. Talmadge said in a speech here last Friday before a Democratic Rally held by the Union County Democratic Executive Committee.

Referring to these fields as "the three fundamental F's of modern government," the Atlanta Attorney and Henry County Farmer said the questions which the nation must answer through its representatives in Congress are:

"Are we going to take steps to assure the farmer his fair share of the national income or are we going to destroy the small farmer and allow the current agricultural depression to spread to other segments of our economy?

"Are we going to adopt a sound, realistic foreign policy of enlightened self-interest or are we going to continue our bankrupting attempt to buy what we are unwilling to earn and do for foreign nations what we cannot even do for our own people here at home?

"Are we going to restore fiscal stability, national solvency and individual initiative through a balanced federal budget, systematic debt reduction and lower taxes or are we going to continue to flirt with economic disaster through continued deficit spending, increased debt limits and sustained confiscatory tax rates?"

THE MANNER in which those questions are answered, the Former Governor maintained, will determine whether the United States will be able to preserve its free enterprise system, maintain its position of world leadership and protect the constitutionally-guaranteed rights of its citizens under a republican form of government.

Quest For Agricultural, Industrial Development Must Be Sustained-HET

BLACKSHEAR, Ga. — Former Governor Herman Talmadge, speaking before the Second Annual Meeting of the Blackshear-Pierce County Chamber of Commerce here last week, warned that Georgia must not let up in her quest for new agricultural growth and industrial development.

"We can all take pride in the business and industrial expansion which has taken place in Georgia during the last decade. We have seen our State forge steadily ahead and have seen new plants come to Georgia representing nearly every large business and industrial organization in the country," he said.

"The fact that latest figures show that we are breaking all records for growth in the first half of 1956 does not mean, however, that we can rest on our accomplishments. We are not going to realize continued creation of this new opportunity the easy way. It is going to take more work and vision on the part of the people, on the part of the press and other information media, on the part of Chamber of Commerce groups such as yours and on the part of your elected officials serving at all levels of the government."

He called for continued efforts looking toward development of Georgia's resources, the attraction of new business and industrial development.

THE SPEAKER reviewed the gains made in industry during his Administration as Governor and declared that if he is elected to the Senate he will continue to work actively with all groups interested in Georgia's advancement both industrially and agriculturally.

He assured his listeners that he would strive at all times to protect the free enterprise system and would resist every attempt by the Federal Government to interfere with state sovereignty.

"Our industrial growth here in Georgia and in the South has been occasioned by many fac-

Talmadge Tells Teachers Nation's Survival Dependent Upon Education

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Survival of our country is dependent upon her educational processes, Senatorial Candidate Herman E. Talmadge declared here in an address Tuesday night.

The Former Governor was principal speaker at the Annual Meeting of the Richmond County Teachers' Association, composed of some 600 educators, who assembled at the Richmond Academy Auditorium. The meeting also was open to the public.

"All of you are familiar with the continuing and difficult problems confronting our State and local governments in providing a suitable level of education for our children in an ever expanding population and in an ever-changing world," he said.

"How you educators meet this challenge will determine the destiny of our country. We must keep far out ahead in all fields of education, particularly in the sciences and engineering.

"Why, even a quarter of a century ago, Russian leadership made the education of young scientists and engineers 'a keystone' of its national policy. In the short space of a few years, that nation has come from a third-rate power to challenge the entire world. Today, Russia is graduating twice as many scientists and engineers as the United States."

THE SPEAKER warned that the most reliable evidence available indicates that Communist Russia now is abreast or even ahead of the United States in development of thermonuclear weapons. He said Russian scientists are reputed to be the first in the world to perfect a short-cut method of making an inexpensive and deliverable hydrogen bomb.

"The threat posed to the future of our country cannot be ignored or explained away. Our very existence as a nation depends upon the educational process to save this country by developing the maximum potential of our young people.

"We cannot fail—we must not fail in this important task," he continued.

"We will win through in this fight because Russia places all emphasis on the materialistic while we emphasize the spiritual development of our young people in addition to stressing the practical and technological aspects of education."

Talmadge said that Georgia has strained every resource in the last few years in the crusade to provide her children with a higher standard of education, both on the common school and college levels.

HE EXPRESSED pride in the fact that during his Administration more funds were provided for education in six years than during all the preceding 78 combined. He pointed to the $150,000,000 school and University System building program inaugurated and carried to full fruition throughout every county in Georgia and in every unit of the University System under his leadership.

"All phases of Georgia's educational program—academic, medical, scientific, engineering, professional, vocational and others — have been brought from

States' Rights Big Issue In Georgia, Stevenson Is Told

Georgia voters are most concerned about "usurpation of power of the states by the Federal Government," Former Governor Herman E. Talmadge advised Democratic Presidential Nominee Adlai Stevenson last week.

In a telegram expressing his regret at being unable to attend a Conference of Democratic Leaders in Knoxville, Tenn., as invited by Mr. Stevenson, Talmadge pledged his "full support to the Democratic Ticket in Georgia."

AS I SEE GEORGIA

(From THE MIRROR-NEWS, Rossville)

Friday, August 17, 1956, Georgia's Young Warrior stood before thousands at Ft. Oglethorpe and renewed his pledge to Georgians to make every attempt within his power to preserve our present way of life. Herman exhibited a character of firmness as he stood singly opposing a philosophy that is fast domineering our beloved Southland. The greatness of his deed demands respect.

Herman Talmadge certainly added splendor and color to the historic scene of Ft. Oglethorpe. During his speech he thumbed his way through the catalogue of national evils. He deplored the conduct of his own party when he reflected that during the Democratic Convention no mention was made of states rights'. He made a comparative analysis of the farmers condition under the Republican Administration to the conditions which prevailed four years ago. After having painted a dismal picture he avowed that Secretary of Agriculture Benson should be "plowed under" and the farmer be returned to his rightful place.

Herman displayed his interest in the farmer. Before his address, I observed him as he placed his arms around several. They seemed to refresh him and relieve him temporarily from the strains of his campaign. Further evidence of his interest in agriculture was given when Herman related that he was a farmer and a lawyer.

We heard two fellows talking about Herman Talmadge—that is not news—the other day, and one of them said, "Herman Talmadge has the ear marks of a statesman." Yes, that's right, and there are very few of 'em left in this country, too. Several years ago, there was some trading and trafficing done in the realms of politics; they traded statesmanship for "political strategy" and we have just about run out of seed. There is a vast difference in a "Statesman," and a "Politician." The woods are full of politicians, but there are only a few Statesmen left, and Herman Talmadge does have the "ear marks" of a statesman, and the entire world will find it out, we hope.

The Bible tells us that "One man can chase a thousand, and two can put ten thousand to flight." That's a good percentage, isn't it! Well, that's what we were talking about the other day, in answer to the question by a doubting Thomas, when he asked the question, "What could Herman do, if he should be elected?" Never mind, brother, he can do aplenty, and he will do it.

Herman displayed his interest in the farmer. Before his address, I observed him as he placed his arms around several. They seemed to refresh him and relieve him temporarily from the strains of his campaign. Further evidence of his interest in agriculture was given when Herman related that he was a farmer and a lawyer.

Herman Talmadge is much more than a farmer or a lawyer, he is a symbol that travels about the land encouraging men to take inventory of all the attempts to reduce us to the state of savages. Herman knows that if we expect to reap the blessings of freedom, we must undergo the fatigues of supporting it. Herman is not defending a few acres of ground; rather a cause, a heritage that has come to us. This heritage is ours because down through the ages we have clung to a set of ideals furnished by the generations before us and color was given to our future and through hope our lives have been worth living. Now we review the past as glorious, but the future stirs us with fury.

Herman is not inflaming or exaggerating matters, but trying them by feelings and affections which nature justifies. He does not go about Georgia exhibiting these horrors for the purpose of provoking revenge, but to awaken us from fatal slumber. The only way that we may lose the fight is through delay and timidity. Herman is aware of this; he sacrifices our "bushwhackers" no time, no season for their purge. Herman is ever concerned about our good cause and whether it might suffer dishonor because of disunion among us. Now is the time that all Georgians should enlist, we should avail ourselves and display a patriotism to Georgia. Let us regard this a solemn duty, not a mere political opinion that we hold to today and discard tomorrow. A good consolidated, dedicated effort of this sort will drive the venom into the sea of disbelief.

Now as our voice of hope goes forth, we must support him in every way. We should give him such an overwhelming majority September 12, 1956, that our opponents in Washington will be compelled to wonder and admire. We must pursue these aims with an eagerness of interest, a devotion to duty, and a common desire to see Georgia maintain her respect among the states. From the magic of the name Herman Talmadge, we can expect a force and an authority of reason and most important of all; our cause well represented.

Georgians Urged To Give Herman Talmadge Record Vote

(THE WALTON TRIBUNE, Monroe)

As Georgia's Sept. 12 Democratic primary election date approaches, there doesn't appear to be any doubt in most people's minds as to the outcome of the U. S. senatorial race. Just about anybody and everybody you talk to concedes that Former Gov. Herman Talmadge will be nominated to succeed Walter F. George.

And, oddly enough, it's because of this general feeling that Talmadge's active supporters are a bit uneasy at the moment. They fear some voters may stay away from the polls on the assumption "Herman's got it in the bag; he doesn't need my vote so I won't bother to cast it."

It isn't that these voters think a light vote would change the outcome of the election. They are confident Talmadge will win under any circumstances. But they are concerned over what effect a small total vote would have in official Washington when Georgia's new senator gets there.

On that point, James L. Gillis, of Soperton, Talmadge's campaign manager, recently had this to say:

"From all indications there is no doubt but that Gov. Talmadge on Sept. 12 will carry each of the 159 counties of Georgia and virtually all of the state's 1,700-odd militia districts. It is apparent that he will be nominated by one of the greatest majorities ever given a candidate for state-wide office in Georgia history.

"However, despite the fact that the outcome of the primary is a foregone conclusion, it is essential that Gov. Talmadge, if he is to be an effective spokesman for the viewpoint of Georgia and the South, go to Washington with the practically-unanimous backing of all Georgians. When he speaks from the floor of the U. S. Senate, it is important that the nation and the world know that he speaks for the united people of Georgia.

"Therefore, I call on all citizens who share with me the conviction that we need and must have Gov. Talmadge as our champion in Congress to join with me now in working as hard as we possibly can to assure the largest possible vote for him on Sept. 12.

"Let me urge our friends and relatives and urge them to urge their friends and relatives to go to the polls and cast their ballots for Herman Talmadge.

"If we will work for him for these few weeks, he will work for us the next six years devoting his full talent and energy to representing the best interests of all the people of Georgia and fighting our battle for a return to constitutional government in this nation."

(The above editorial also was carried by The Cochran Journal and The Marion County Patriot of Buena Vista.)

What happens when a NEW PAYROLL comes to town?

MORE SPENDING MONEY isn't the only thing a new factory payroll brings to town. A survey made by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce shows that 100 new factory workers also meant this to a community:

296 more people
112 more households
51 more school children
107 more passenger car registrations
174 more workers employed
4 more retail establishments
$590,000 more personal income per year
$270,000 more bank deposits
$360,000 more retail sales per year

Here's convincing proof, we think, that whatever helps the Southland to develop industrially is a real contribution to the long-range growth and prosperity of the South. The Southern helps in many ways.

Our own Industrial Development Department aggressively seeks new industries for every available plant site. Our nation-wide advertising program continually invites business enterprises of all kinds to "Look Ahead — Look South!" for greater opportunity. Our modern rail service helps provide the economical and efficient mass transportation so indispensable to industrial progress and growth.

New payrolls—and all they mean to a community — are "coming to town" all over the South. Last year 23,000 new jobs were created by industrial expansion along the Southern Railway System alone. Many in the South helped bring this about. All in the South benefit!

The alternatives, he added, "are too foreboding even to contemplate."

Talmadge outlined his platform planks for dealing with these questions and expressed the belief that if they were adopted there would "never be any necessity for having to contemplate the alternatives." He listed his proposals as follows:

FARM POLICY—price supports for basic commodities of not less than 90 per cent of parity; price supports for livestock; minimum acreage allotments; vigorous programs for disposal of surplus farm products; strengthening soil bank, soil conservation and flood and drought control programs; aid for tree planting; unstinted support to the REA; extension of rural telephone service; expanded agricultural experimentation and research; and restriction on imports of agricultural products in competition with domestic farm commodities in surplus supply.

FOREIGN POLICY — formulation of a realistic foreign policy based upon the application of practical experience and common sense; acceptance of humanitarian responsibility of feeding hungry people and practical responsibility of taking every possible measure for military defense; elimination of purely foreign economic aid and careful examination of each military assistance project to assure that taxpayers get their money's worth; and cease doing for foreign nations what cannot be done for people here at home.

FISCAL POLICY—systematic beginning on debt reduction; end to deficit spending; better budgetary control; an across-the-board reduction in federal income tax rates to restore incentive and stimulate creation of new jobs; and halt further federal encroachment upon the revenue sources of state and local governments.

THE FORMER Chief Executive was introduced by Bill Wellborn, prominent Union County citizen. Robert W. Jones, secretary of the Union County Democratic Executive Committee, presided. State Commissioner of Agriculture Phil Campbell also spoke.

The rally was held at the Georgia Mountain Experiment Station here whieh was greatly expanded during the Talmadge Administration. It was preceded by a luncheon at the Milton Hotel.

Friday morning, Talmadge delivered the principal address at the dedication of Gilmer County's new schools constructed at a cost of $703,500 under the Talmadge-sponsored State School Building Authority Program. He was invited to participate in the Ellijay ceremonies by Gilmer County School Superintendent Bryan Parks.

In his speech, the Former Governor reiterated his position that education is a function reserved by the United States Constitution to the individual states and pledged that, as United States Senator, he would seek passage of legislation curbing the jurisdiction of the United States Supreme Court to consider cases involving the administration of the various state school systems.

Talmadge told his audience that the Supreme Court's decision of May 17, 1954, relative to school operation and control "is proving to be the tragic mistake of our time."

low rank to the top in the region and a high position nationally," he observed.

"What we have accomplished here in education within the limit of our State's resources has attracted an unusually-large amount of favorable nation-wide comment and is a great tribute to the thinking and vision of the education profession in Georgia which charted the course for a bold and imaginative improvement.

"But we cannot rest on what we have accomplished thus far. A changing and growing society and a modern industrial and agricultural economy evolving here with its consequent demands for capable leadership will not permit us to rest.

"I am confident that the teaching profession in Georgia will continue to prove by its deeds that it is worthy of its high calling. I pledge you—I pledge the children of Georgia —every energy and talent that I may possess in the crusade to make the light of knowledge shine ever brighter in this land," Talmadge concluded.

He was invited to speak at the occasion by Roy E. Rollins, superintendent of schools of Richsentative of South Carolina's Third District, and Mrs. Dorn.

tors such as nearness to raw materials, excellent and talented labor and perhaps most important the expanding consumer markets of our area! We do not seek an unfair advantage over any other sections of the nation, but we do insist that no unfair or crippling restrictions be thrown in our way to impede the sound economic growth now being realized by our people."

Speaking earlier at the South Georgia Tobacco Farmers Celebration sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the Former Chief Executive called for a bold, new and effective national farm program to put American agriculture back on its feet.

HE PRAISED tobacco farmers of the Pierce County trading area for their enterprise and industry in utilizing the latest methods of tobacco production. He assured them that his good offices are always available to help get the best price possible and the most favorable market for their tobacco and other crops.

"There is a lot that can still be done to strengthen agriculture in America and I am for going all-out for scientific studies to determine better methods of production and uses for farm products," he declared.

"We must strengthen the soil bank and render it serviceable to the small farmer, we must strengthen our soil conservation, flood and drouth control programs and work for expanded agricultural experimentation and research. It has been proved time and time again that the money spent for these programs pays handsome dividends."

The Former Governor commended the merchants and businessmen of Blackshear and Pierce County each year. Talmadge was invited to speak by Dr. W. G. Brown, of Blackshear, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Stevenson—

The Former Governor listed, at Mr. Stevenson's request, the issues which are of greatest concern to Georgians as follows:

"1. usurpation of power of the states by the Federal Government;

"2. adequate military security with most modern weapons;

"3. assuring our farmers of an adequate living; and

"4. reduction of our ever-increasing tax burden much of which is being spent for projects of doubtful value."

The full text of the Talmadge telegram reads:

"Deeply regret that engagement to speak in Albany, Georgia, on August 30th prevents my being in Knoxville on that date. It is my opinion that the issues considered strongest by the people of Georgia at the present time are: (1) usurpation of power of the states by the Federal Government; (2) adequate military security with the most modern weapons; (3) assuring our farmers of an adequate living; and (4) reduction of our ever-increasing tax burden much of which is being spent for projects of doubtful value. You may be assured that I, as usual, will lend my full support to the Democratic Ticket in Georgia. Regards."

We agree with Former Governor Herman Talmadge when he says that come what may the South will continue to get a better deal from the Democratic Party than from the Republican and that the thing to do is to work for and support the Democratic nominees in November. — The Catoosa County News, Ringgold.

During the afternoon, Talmadge greeted his friends at Open House held by the Talmadge for Senate Club at the Richmond Hotel here. Immediately prior to his address, the Former Governor was interviewed over a local television station.

Among the dignitaries attending the night meeting were Congressman William Jennings Bryan Dorn of Greenwood, S. C., repre-of the Pierce County trading area for their enterprise and industry in utilizing the latest methods of tobacco production. He assured them that his good offices are always available to help get the best price possible and the most favorable market for their tobacco and other crops.

The Former Governor commended the merchants and businessmen of Blackshear and Pierce County for supporting their local Chamber of Commerce and predicted that in years to come its establishment would be hailed as one of the wisest moves ever made from a civic and business improvement standpoint. He recalled that the State Department of Commerce was created during his Administration as Governor and had enjoyed much success working with local trade groups.

SHORTLY FOLLOWING the address by Talmadge the 1956 Pierce County "Tobacco Queen" was crowned before the large crowd assembled in the City park.

Proceeds from the "Queen" contest went to Youth Recreations, Inc., for completion of the recreational building and bathhouse at the new Blackshear swimming pool.

in Knoxville on that date. It is my opinion that the issues considered strongest by the people of Georgia at the present time are: (1) usurpation of power of the states by the Federal Government; (2) adequate military security with

TALMADGE for SENATE

Talmadge Opposes Proposed Lift Of Peanut Import Ban

Former Governor Herman E. Talmadge Monday wired President Eisenhower to urge that he disapprove the recommendation of the U. S. Tariff Commission that unlimited amounts of Virginia-type peanuts be permitted to be imported into this country.

The Atlanta Attorney advised the President that to permit unlimited peanut imports would result in heavy losses to Georgia farmers. He pointed out that farmers already are "hard put" to survive in the present cost-price squeeze and warned that the proposed action of the Tariff Commission "could be disastrous to small farmers who depend upon peanuts for their cash income."

The text of Talmadge's telegram is as follows:

"Georgia peanut farmers are greatly disturbed over the recommendation of the U. S. Tariff Commission that an order be entered permitting the importation of unlimited amounts of Virginia-type peanuts into this country. Georgia farmers heeded requests that they increase their acreage planted to this type peanut this year and their production already is being delivered to markets here in Georgia. If these proposed imports are allowed, the result will be to force peanut prices down to or below the loan level at heavy loss to our farmers as well as at great cost to the Federal Government. Georgia farmers already are hard put to survive in the present cost-price squeeze and this proposed action could be disastrous to small farmers who depend upon peanuts for their cash income. I respectfully urge that you disapprove this recommendation of the Tariff Commission."

A man said to another one recently, "Is 'Me Too' still in the race for the U. S. Senate?" The other answered, "Has he ever been in!" Well, he thinks he's in, and that will do 'Me Too' just as good as any!—The Georgia Tribune, Columbus.

And while we're forecasting fashions, here's what the tea leaves say about politics, Georgia style: Herman Talmadge will carry at least 159 counties in his race for the Senate.—The Donalsonville News.

The new GM HYDROSTARTER assures instant starts for new or old engines . . . and under adverse conditions . . . its cost is comparable to that of conventional systems. Here's why: Replacement and maintenance costs of batteries, cables, magnetos and air compressors over the years on conventional systems add up to plenty of money. But there's practically no maintenance or replacement on the trouble-free GM HYDRO-STARTER . . . so it's apparent that the instant-acting GM HYDROSTARTER will cost you much less in the long run.

New General Motors HYDROSTARTER

For Diesel Engines

The GM HYDROSTARTER combines rapid acceleration with extremely high torque . . . cranking speeds are obtained within split seconds. If your engine is in even fair running condition, high cranking speed assures instant starts under the most adverse weather conditions. Unlike electrical starting systems, cranking ability of the GM HYDROSTARTER is not reduced at low temperatures.

The accumulator, which furnishes the power to the hydraulic starting motor, is factory preloaded with non-combustible and non-corrosive nitrogen gas, and then is tightly sealed. This gas when under pressure, acts upon a piston which in turn forces oil to the starting motor. And once the Diesel engine has been started the accumulator is recharged by pumping oil back into the unit against the piston, and again compressing the gas for future starts.

Each GM HYDROSTARTER is equipped with a manual pump in addition to the motor driven one, for emergency charging of the accumulator. It can be also used as a convenient means of cranking over the engine during tune-up or other servicing.

A WIDE VARIETY OF ARRANGEMENTS is possible with the basic units making up this starting system. They can be mounted on equipment cab walls, running boards, etc., wherever most convenient. Right and left-hand starter units are available.

RESERVE CAPACITY for extreme conditions can be had by providing more than one accumulator.
